1 About this document

1.1 Purpose

The purpose of this document is to provide the Code of Conduct required by the Clinical Classifications Service (CCS) as a condition of registration as an Approved Clinical Coding Trainer and use of the national standard clinical coding core curriculum training materials (Clinical Coding Standards course, Clinical Coding Standards Refresher course and NCCQ (UK) Revision Course).

The Code of Conduct is applicable to all Clinical Classifications Service Approved Clinical Coding Trainers and governs your personal conduct in this capacity.

1.2 Target Audience

This document has been written for all Clinical Classifications Service Approved Clinical Coding Trainers.

The Code will also be published on the Clinical Classifications Service website so anyone commissioning training using an Approved Clinical Coding Trainer can be assured of the Conduct expected from their trainer.

1.3 Related Documents

An Approved Clinical Coding Trainer must read this document in conjunction with the following documents:

2 Background

An Approved Clinical Coding Trainer has fulfilled a framework of Clinical Classifications Service requirements to become an Approved Clinical Coding Trainer. This in turn allows the trainer access to fully developed and tested national clinical coding core curriculum training materials to support delivery of NHS training.

The continued registration as an ‘approved’ trainer is subject to compliance with the Clinical Classifications Service Approved Clinical Coding Trainers 2017-18 Requirements Framework, Licence Agreement and Code of Conduct.

The Clinical Classifications Service holds a database of Approved NHS and Approved Commercial/Independent Clinical Coding Trainers which is only used by the Clinical Classifications Service to i) monitor that a trainer remains compliant with the Trainer Requirements Framework or ii) confirm Approved Clinical Coding Trainer status to Trusts completing their annual Information Governance Toolkit submissions.

The Clinical Classifications Service also publishes a list of Approved Clinical Coding Trainers that have given permission for their details to be shared at https://hscic.kahootz.com/connect.ti/t_c_home/view?objectid=355716&exp=e1
Confirmation of the approved status of a clinical coding trainer who is not on this list must be requested via information.standards@nhs.net

3 General Principles

3.1 Integrity
You shall act with integrity in your relationships with delegates, other trainers and with members of other professions with whom you work in a professional capacity.

3.2 Competency
You shall not claim any level of competence that you do not possess and you shall only offer to provide training that is within your professional competence. An example would be offering to deliver specialist clinical coding training appropriate for an experienced trainer whilst an apprentice trainer.

3.3 Probity
You shall undertake training in line with principles outlined within the Code of Conduct, and declare any interest or concern which may cause you to act against this Code.

3.4 Confidentiality
In general all personal and occupational information about the trainee gained during the training course must be treated confidentially.

4 Rules of Conduct

- You shall uphold the reputation and good standing of the CCS in particular, and the profession in general, and shall seek to improve professional standards through participation in their development use and enforcement.

- You shall listen to the views and needs of all delegates and make adjustments to your training style in order to meet those needs.

- You shall seek to upgrade your professional knowledge and skills, including training delivery skills, and shall maintain awareness of classifications developments, procedures and standards and encourage others to do likewise.

- You shall dress in a smart and professional way or as agreed with the commissioning organisation. Inappropriate dress would include denim jeans, sportswear including trainers.

- You shall arrive in good time for the start of each day of a course and not leave early where it would compromise the integrity of the course. It is not acceptable to allow delegates to leave early except in extenuating circumstances and they are expected to attend the full course.

- In general all personal and occupational information about the trainee gained during the training course must be treated confidentially. Line managers see end of course assessments. The CCS keeps a record of delegate registers for Clinical Coding Standards, Clinical Coding Standards Refresher and NCCQ (UK) Revision courses and Clinical Coding Academy developed Specialty Workshops for the purpose of issuing a link to the online evaluation survey. This information is not passed to any other parties.

- Your language and style of training shall not exclude or discriminate against any individual or group and trainers will work positively to break down barriers to exclusion.

- You shall provide honest and objective feedback to delegates about any areas for development and areas of strength to support the delegate.

- You shall act in a professional manner at all times.

- You shall keep issues discussed on the course confidential, wherever this is appropriate to do so.

- You shall not bring into disrepute the materials or any member of the Clinical Classifications Service.

- You shall use the Training Materials Change Request mechanism to notify any anomalies in or recommended improvements to the training materials.

5 Withdrawal of Approved Clinical Coding Trainer status

Trainers must behave impeccably whilst on site and show the utmost respect to the organisation’s personnel at all times. The organisation has the right to complain if unhappy with a trainer’s conduct.

Any concerns about the conduct of a trainer who is registered on our database of Approved Clinical Coding Trainers should be formally raised with the Clinical Classifications Service via the Helpdesk at information.standards@nhs.net.

The Clinical Classifications Service reserves the right to remove any individual contravening the requirements framework, which includes the code of conduct, from the List of Approved Clinical Coding Trainers and terminate the Clinical Coding Training Materials Licence Agreement.
